INTRODUCTION

On this occasion of the expression of humble devotion to the Sustainer of the worlds, first of all we have to think in the recesses of our hearts how to thank Him for His spiritual favours, help and granting of success. But in this special and difficult task, our humble intelligence and thinking cannot yield any result without His help. Therefore, it is necessary for us to have always and everywhere, recourse to Him so that He may guide us through His light of guidance, which exists and is present in the physical and spiritual worlds.

This humble servant with the sincerity of soul and heart invites all his students and friends to participate fully in the expression of gratitude for these great favours, because in many ways we are like a single soul and all have prayed and endeavoured to attain this precious bounty. Praise be to Allah, during our obedience to Him, the Prophet and sahib-i amr (Lord of command), we have understood this reality that all human beings are potentially one and mu'mins in actuality.

This book which is given the name "Pearls of Macrifat" consists of some high and valuable articles pertaining to macrifat (gnosis). Knowledge and macrifat are so high and so precious that even if we compare them with precious pearls, it is not enough. For knowledge and macrifat are the possession alone of the holy and pure Imam and of nobody else. Thus this possession of the Imam is more precious than all the material treasures of the entire universe.

The articles in this book, although they may appear to be disconnected, have the vivid colour of marifat and hence are quite relevant and coherent on the level of marifat. Therefore, it is quite appropriate to call this collection the "Pearls of Marifat". Marifat or spiritualism is such a wisdom-filled light, that all realities are seen linked together in it. Several Qur'anic verses signify this, that all different and diverse examples of the Qur'an return to one "Reality". For instance, the example of 'Bee', according to which, the bee, by the permission of God, has the freedom to move in all directions and to link the destiny of one flower with another through its flight, in whatever way it wants and to make the honey of one colour from the essence of different flowers of different colours. This example of physical honey stands for the spiritual honey which is knowledge and ma<sup>C</sup>rifat, which has one colour and one taste.

Spiritual honey is made by the co-operative work of many souls. According to the natural law, it is not possible for the queen bee alone to make the honey; rather, there are many other worker bees to work for this purpose. In the same way, in order to produce the spiritual honey, i.e. knowledge and marifat, the Imam of the time is the king and we, the spiritual friends, his workers. That is to say, the souls of the mu'mins who serve the Imam of the time sincerely in producing and spreading spiritual knowledge are like the workers of the prince of bees (amir al-nahl = queen of bees) who are engaged in producing the spiritual honey in the gardens and meadows of spiritualism.

This weak and poor servant (of Khudawand) is also greatly content with his third visit to Canada and grateful to Him for His favours that his entire work in imparting and spreading knowledge is being done by Him and His army, physically and spiritually.

During this visit, by His grace and favours, many important works have been accomplished simultaneously. For example, to work as a Research Associate in the Department of Linguistics and Philology, University of Montreal, with other professors in compiling a book of Burushaski proverbs; to further the work on Burushaski grammar and dictionary; to develop the Burushaski course for the training of youngsters who are engaged in preparing Burushaski literature and to continue the usual practice of correspondence to spread spiritual knowledge and to conduct local majalis in this connection.

For this humble darwish the army of Mawla is first the office-bearers and members of Khanah-i Hikmat and ARIF, who by the grace of Khudawand encouraged me in every respect and advanced my work with courage and high ambition. Undoubtedly, they are the angels of mercy for me. It is the wisdom-filled habit of God that when He wants to grant someone success in good deeds, He grants him good friends and when He wants someone to fail, He befriends him to bad ones. This is a wondrous Divine drama.

To the readers of this book it is my sincere suggestion that as much as possible, they should also try to study my other books, so that the realities will be clearer to them. For often in order to understand the views of an author or the knowledge which he has presented, it is not enough to read only one of his books, rather one has to study his other works too. This is why in today's world of progress in knowledge and science, when a meticulous and analytical study of the book of an author is done, his other books are also studied to facilitate, clarify and substantiate the work.

In this book there are many points which can be considered revolutionary in knowledge and spiritualism, for they are from the spiritual treasure of the family of the Prophet, namely, the Imam of the time. And the very purpose of the existence and presence of the Imam in this world is to give to the deserving ones such knowledge which no-one has at that time. Such knowledge is the spiritual knowledge of the Imam which is called his miracle of knowledge  $(\underline{\text{mu}^C}\underline{\text{jizah-i}}^C\underline{\text{ilmi}})$  and he is distinguished from the rest of mankind because of this knowledge. As God says: "And there is not a thing but with Us are its treasures" (XV:21).

By these treasures are meant the ranks of the exalted imamat, as it is said in another verse: "And We have encompassed everything in the Manifest Imam (in the form of spiritual knowledge)" (XXXVI:12).

Further we have to reflect also upon this verse: "But it is the glorious Qur'an which is on a Guarded Tablet (in spiritual writing)" (LXXXV:21-22)

There are three different ways of thinking about these verses. First, to think that the Manifest Imam does not mean the Imam of the time, rather it is the name of the Guarded Tablet which is on the material firmament and hence it has no relation with the Imam of the time. Secondly, to think that the Guarded Tablet is undoubtedly a separate reality, but it is spiritual and not material. Therefore, as the Qur'an is physically in this world and spiritually in the Guarded Tablet, similarly, the physical aspect of the light of imamat is apparent in this world and the spiritual one linked with the Guarded Tablet. Thirdly, to think that the Manifest Imam is the Imam of the time who is apparent and existent in this world and he himself is the Guarded Tablet in luminous and spiritual state; in which state the Qur'an is guarded and glorious.

Of these three ways of thinking there is no truth in the first one. For it is not possible for the Divine things to be beyond the access of people, somewhere away from this world, when the greatest thing of Godthe light of the Prophet, which God has ordained the "Mercy for the world (rahmat-i alam)", continues in this world in his successor in the form of the light of imamat (nur-i imamat). Further, how is it possible for the Benevolent Lord to praise His treasures whose doors cannot be open for the people of the world, and to praise such a Guarded Tablet which contains everything pertaining to spiritualism and knowledge, including the Qur'an with its spiritual beauty and glory, when the people have no access to it. This is beyond the law of His mercy that He creates in people yearning for something and does not provide the means of its attainment. This shows that people have access to the Divine things and all His things are in one thing, which is everything and that is the light of Imamat. That is to say that as God has created a source of material light for the material world - the sun, which is everything for the material world, similarly, He has appointed a source of spiritual light for the world of humanity and religion - the Imam, in whom there is everything in the state of spiritualism and knowledge.

I WAS ASKED

- Q. I In my opinion the Ismā<sup>C</sup>īlīs do not act upon the juristical matters (fighī umūr) in their entirety?
- No, your opinion is not correct. In fact, the means and the Α. purpose which the jurisprudence (figh) had is available only to the Ismā<sup>C</sup>īlīs, and not to anybody else. That is to say jurisprudence, in reality, is the work of Imam made in the light of the Qur'an and the Prophetic Tradition (hadith). Now let me ask a question in this connection: Had God completed the jurisprudence during the time of revelation of the Qur'an? No. Had the Prophet himself completed it during the time of Prophethood? No. If not, then who completed it? The imams. This is absolutely true, that the jurisprudence is completed by the Imams, particularly Imam Ja<sup>C</sup> far al-Sadiq, and it is because of this that in Shīcah faith it is called Figh-i Jacfari, namely the jurisprudence made by the Imam Ja<sup>C</sup> far al-Sadiq. Now the  $Ism\bar{a}^C\bar{i}l\bar{i}s$  have both-the jurisprudence and also the heir and successor of Imam Ja<sup>C</sup>far al-Sādig from his progeny. Therefore, the way the  $Ism\bar{a}^C\bar{1}1\bar{1}s$  are acting upon the jurisprudence is the only correct way of practising it, as mentioned above, for in a way, the very founder of the jurisprudence himself, Imam Ja<sup>C</sup> far al-Sadiq, lives among them in the form of his successor from his progeny.

- Q. 2 What is the reason that the terms shari<sup>C</sup>at, tariqat, haqiqat and ma<sup>C</sup>rifat are widely used in your books?
- A. The reason for using these terms is Islam itself which is called the straight path (sirāt-i mustaqīm). This path which leads to God has the above four stages, as every long path necessarily has stages. These terms are also adopted by the Sūfis. See the Dictionary of Islam, in which these terms are mentioned as the four stages of Islam.
- Q. 3 What is the reason that you are called bāṭinīs (esotericists)?

  How would you explain it?
- A. The reason for calling us bāṭinīs is that we, in addition to zāhir (exoteric meaning) of Islam, believe in its bāṭin (esoteric meaning). For the Prophet says: "There is no verse, among the verses of the Qur'ān, which does not have a zāhir and a bāṭin and each bāṭin seven bāṭins", and according to another narration, "seventy bāṭins". Now you should think and tell me whether the wisdom-filled bāṭin of the book which God has sent as a guide in such a way that its bāṭin exceeds the zāhir manifold, is futile and useless, or it also has guidance like the zāhir. If we accept that the bāṭin also has guidance, which one has to do, then necessarily we have to practise both. However, it is impossible to practise first the bāṭin, then the zāhir, nor was it appropriate to practise both during the time of the Prophet.

But the best way of practising both is that first, namely, in the period of sharicat the  $z\bar{a}hir$  (tanzil) should be practised more and more and then in the period of haqiqat the  $b\bar{a}tin$  ( $t\bar{a}'w\bar{i}1$ ). That is why one day the Prophet said: "verily, among you is the one who will fight for the sake of ta'w11 (esoteric meaning) as I did for the sake of tanzīl (exoteric meaning)." It is well known that this fighter for ta'wil was our Lord CAli. Now the question arises that as for the tanzil the Prophet fought for it, the purpose of which was to cause the zahir to be put into practice, but why did he entrust Imam CAli with the responsibility of fighting for ta'wil, that is, to bring the esoteric commands of the Qur'an in front of the people? The answer is that it is necessary to put into practice the bāṭin of the Qur'an after its zāhir. For Islam is the religion of nature and nature contains progress. For instance, the transformation of a plant into a tree is natural progress and the transformation of a child into a mature man is natural progress. Similarly, Islam during the time of the Prophet was like a plant which has to grow and flourish. So  $Ism\bar{a}^{C}\bar{i}l\bar{i}sm$  is the best example of Islam that it practises bātin after following zāhir.

- Q. 4 Why is it that the Imam lives in the west? Why does he not live in the east?
- A. There are numerous wisdoms hidden in the Imam's living in the west. One of them is that the Imam in the present time should live in a country where he can be internationally prominent and work effectively for Islam and Ismā<sup>C</sup>īlīsm. There are numerous evidences which prove the fact that the family of the imāmat, while living in the west, has accomplished great deeds in the interest of the Muslims.

The second wisdom is that the city where the Prophet was sent is Makka, to which the Qur'an gives the title of umm al-qurā (the mother of cities) (VI:92). This means that the Imam has to live in a great country among a powerful nation to influence the entire world. And there are many such other wisdoms.

- Q. 5 What is your view regarding the qiblah?
- A. Regarding the qiblah I have the same view as the Qur'an has. That is to say that the qiblah is obligatory in all the prayers of sharī<sup>c</sup>at, but in other prayers, such as a tasbīh, or du<sup>c</sup>a, or dhikr-i ilāhī ( remembrance of God), it is not obligatory. For at the level of sharī<sup>c</sup>at the qiblah has a special tā'wīl, but in the matters of tā'wīl it does not have such a thing, therefore, there is no need of it.

- Q. 6 What is the guidance of the Imam regarding alcohol?
- A. Whatever is unlawful according to sharicat is also unlawful according to the Imam, particularly alcohol which is the root of all evils. Let alone alcohol, the Imam has also forbidden tobacco-smoking. While this slow poison is permitted for use by many others, despite the fact that according to Islam all those things detrimental to health are unlawful.
- Q. 7 It is said that you have written around a hundred books. Is this true?
- A. Yes, this is quite true.
- Q. 8 What is your secular education?
- A. Third and fourth class in one year, and that is all.

  (At this they said: This is really amazing.)
- Q. 9 What is your belief in Ḥaẓrat <sup>C</sup>Alī̈?
- A. He is the vicar of God, the legatee of the Prophet and the true Imam.
- Q. 10 It is also said that while you were imprisoned in China you went through great spiritual miracles? Is this true?
- A. Yes, this is also true.

- Q. 11 Would you kindly cite a Qur'anic verse regarding the validity of the  $Ism\bar{a}^C\bar{i}1\bar{i}$  point of view?
- There are numerous verses in this regard. One of them, for Α. instance, "And hold fast, all of you together, the Rope of Allah, and do not be scattered" (XXXIIO3). In this verse is mentioned, on the one hand, the disease of scattering into sects, and on the other, its remedy. And the remedy of (the disease of) scattering into sects is to remain holding fast, all together, to the Rope of Allah. According to us the Rope of Allah is first the Prophet and then the chain of imamat. Thus if the people after the Prophet had held the holy skirt of the Imam, like the Ismā<sup>c</sup>ilis, they would not have disobeyed this Divine command by scattering into sects. Contrary to this, if according to someone only the Qur'an and Islam are the Rope of Allah, then why are the Muslims scattered into sects, despite holding the Qur'an and Islam, while the nature of the Rope of Allah is such that if people hold it they remain united and in agreement?

Another verse in this connection is: "And he who holds fast to Allah, he indeed receives the guidance to a right path" (III:101). Here it is important to know this that had it been possible to hold to God without a means (wasilah) then there would not have been the need of holding the Rope of Allah, leaving Allah Himself. Rather, this verse shows that holding to Allah means holding to His Rope, and this is what God has answered in the verse (III:103) to the question which arises in the verse (III:101). And the answer is that the Rope of Allah is His representative and that is the chain of imamat; therewith is connected the Divine guidance.

The third verse in this respect is: "O ye who believe: Obey Allah, and obey the messenger and those of you who are in authority" (IV:59). In this command three kinds of obedience are made obligatory: the obedience to God, the obedience to the messenger and the obedience to those who are in authority. The third kind of obedience which is the obedience to the Imams of guidance (a'immah-i hudā) is spread in a long chain, in which each Imam, as the sāhib-i amr (Lord of the command), has the right to issue also his own farmāns concerning the new problems, so that the mu'mins obeying the Imam of their own time may fulfil this Divine command, wherein the obedience to the Imam of the time is made obligatory, in addition to the obedience to God and the Prophet. This is the Ismā<sup>C</sup>ili view point in brief.

Nașīr al-Dīn Nașīr Hunzāj, Date: 9-08-80

Note: If a sincere Ismā<sup>C</sup>īlī will read this question-answer carefully, Mawla will be pleased with him that he has understood the position of the Imam. For here there are many lofty points and one answer has covered many questions.

GREAT SECRET OF ATTAINING SUCCESS IN "IBADAT

How can the Satanic waswasah be removed or diminished in  $c_{ib\bar{a}dat}$  and what is the means to escape from it?

First of all it is necessary to know "what is waswasah" and what are the causes of its mental existence. For it is possible to eradicate a disease by diagonising it meticulously. When we see the holy Qur'an we find the word "waswasah" in five separate verses which are: VII:20; XX:120; L:16; CXIV: v,5.

There are various translations of the word "waswasah" and there can be still more. But in this connection an appropriate and understandable one is "perplexing and disturbing thoughts". These thoughts which provide all means of distracting attention and which are caused in the heart of a person by the Satan, appear in varied forms of word and meaning. In other words waswasah is the name given to such disapproved and abhorrent inner states which sway heart, mind and inner senses in varying degrees and from their darkness and murkiness none is excluded except the one whom the light of guidance (nūr-i hidāyat) helps.

Waswasah is also called waswas whose plural is wasawis. It is also in the form of a conspicuous disease in which different kinds of vain thoughts torment the sick and such a person mentally becomes very weak. In this example of waswasah, which is in the form of a disease in front of the people, the Divine Law in the language of wisdom, says to the people of intelligence that the external form of the waswasah, which is hidden in you and which out of ignorance you do not dislike, is such, that you can easily see it. Thus the people of intelligence should consider it the snare of the Satan and his poisoned arrow and try to protect themselves from it.

Another example which is necessary to mention in this connection is that of a mad person. Mad, in Arabic, is called majnun and madness junun. The word 'junun' comes from jinn (=Satan). This means that junun or madness is caused by the Satan, as in the Qur'an (VII:184; XXIII:25,70; XXXIV:46) the word jinnah is used in the sense of junun (=madness). The same order of the words also exists in Persian. Mad is called diwanah (=majnun), madness diwanagi (=junun) and Satan diw (=jinn). Thus whether the word is majnun or diwanah, in any case it is the Satan who causes the junun or diwanagi (=madness). As the holy Qur'an says: "The khannas (=Satan) who causes the waswasah (=junun, diwanagi) in the hearts of the mankind is of the jinn and of mankind." (CXIV:4-6).

The purpose of this explanation is to show that if someone wants to see an open demonstration of the Satanic waswasahs in the physical form he should observe a mad person who how helplessly expresses the waswasahs caused in his heart and mind by the Satan, in the form of madness and insanity. Undoubtedly, his every disapproved utterance and every insane movement is expressed under a separate waswasah.

Here it is extremely important to mention the Law of the Divine wisdom that He, the Wise, in order to make the fortunate understand, has created so many such examples which represent the inner characteristics of man. For instance, rabbit represents sleep; cow - gluttony; snake and camel - rancour; dog - oppression; crow - unlawful eating; peacock - vainglory and coquetry. Similarly, a mad person represents the intense waswasahs which dwell in the heart and mind of a wicked person.

Also a key wisdom in this regard is hidden in this verse: "Those who swallow usury cannot rise up ( on the day of resurrection) save as he arises who the Satan has made dumfounded by (his)touch. That is because they say: Trade is just like usury; whereas Allah permits trading and forbids usury" (II:275). The gist of the ta'wil of this verse is that all Qur'anic examples are ultimately focused on one centre. Thus the true knowledge which is given as a result of obedience to the light of guidance is like trade which God has permitted and the knowledge which people acquire without this obedience is like usury which God has forbidden. This is the knowledge because of which their senses will not be able to work in the resurrection, like a dumfounded person by the touch of the Satan. Thus it should be remembered that although the Satan is free (to mislead people) but this freedom also comes under a law, according to which the sincere servants of God are protected from his evil.

Waswasah increases and decreases according to the manners and religiosity of a person. The Satan always fails and becomes disappointed in influencing someone who has religion, faith and righteousness in his heart, as is mentioned in the Qur'an that the Satan said on the first day: "And I will mislead them every one, save such of them as are Thy sincere servants (who will not fall into the snare of mine)" (XV:30-40).

It should not be forgotten that satans are of both jinn and mankind, as mentioned already, and we want to make you aware of both. The Satan, in order to mislead, that is, to distract the attention during Cibadat, has only one weapon, and that is waswasah, which if looked at, in a way, is very weak. For, according to the Qur'anic wisdom, it is nothing but a voice (bi-sawtika, with thy voice, XVII:64).

The voice of the Satan, both externally and internally, is very weak and futile before the friends of God, but it has great attraction and pleasure for the friends of the Satan himself. This is why many people of this world follow the Satan.

The true friends of God combat with the voice of the Satan with their voice in such a sagacious way that they always do the successful and uninterrupted dhikr of the blessed Name of God with the tongue of heart (=spirit). They look to the Imam of the time externally and internally and act according to his farmāns, whereby God guides them on the paths of peace (V:15,16).

For some people it is difficult to be protected from the attacks of the Satan, for they do not know his attacks and those of his army, nor do they understand the importance and state of their heart and will power. Had they known this it would have been easy for them to protect themselves.

when God said "bi-şawtika, with thy voice" (VII:64) in His most exalted book, the Qur'an, mentioning the Satan, then the people of Divine help understood this wisdom-filled allusion of their Lord, the Benevolent, what the Satan is doing with the help of his army, which consists of the devils of jinn and mankind. For the voice of the Satan does not mean only inner waswasah, but also its circle is widely spread in the external world. However, two things are very necessary for us to protect ourselves from it: they are bandagi and true knowledge. For they are both, in reality, a luminous voice which annihilates the voice of the Satan.

with reference to the holy Qur'an, it has already been said that the Satan has no sway over the sincere (mukhlis) servants of God. Here we want to explain the wisdom of the word "mukhlis" (=sincere). Mukhlis is that mu'min servant who has the quality of ikhlas (=sincerity). Ikhlas (=sincerity, purity) has two places or two aspects, which again are knowledge and bandagi which includes the entire action.

Thus it is alluded here that if the knowledge is true, free and "pure (khāliṣ)" from all kinds of adulteration and dirt, then the knowledge of a true mu'min will be purified from false stories and traditions and absurd views, and in turn, the entire action. The bandagī will also necessarily be purified and then, according to the Divine promise, the Satan will fail to hold sway over the sincere (mukhliṣ) servant.

It should be remembered that ikhlās is among the subjects of highest rank in the Qur'an. The lovely words of this wisdom-filled subject which stem from the root "khā, lām, sād" consist in twelve derivations, mentioned in thirty-one places in the Qur'an. According to the dictionary, the literal meaning of the root of "ikhlas", i.e. khalasa (khulūs) is to be pure, unmixed, unadulterated.

It is among the wise principles of the Qur'an that its way of expression is "subject into the subject". That is to say that every subject contains many other subjects. Thus in the wisdom-filled subject of 'ikhlāş' which with respect to related and direct words is mentioned only in thirty one places, are found many other exalted subjects. Among these subjects, an important one is to see how gloriously God has mentioned His pure religion (dīn-i khālis). The pure religion of God is held by the sincere (mukhlis) servant whose belief is unmixed with wrong views, whose knowledge is free from false traditions and whose worship is unadulterated with the worship of false gods. And he who is in the religion of God is in His fortress. That is to say he is in the protection of God, therefore, the stoning Satan cannot do anything against him.

The first stage is very hard and extremely difficult, for in this stage the Satan tries his best to loosen the hand of a mu'min from the holy skirt of the Imam of the time. When the mu'min, by the Divine grace, advances safely from there, then the second stage comes. The second stage is not as difficult as the first, nor is there as great a danger of going astray from the straight path as in the first. If any difficulty arises here it can be removed by the abundance of the <a href="https://distriction.org

Finally, it is also necessary to mention the causes of the above-mentioned two stages of waswasah. According to the Qur'anic knowledge the dangerous waswasahs of the first stage are caused by the Satan and the weak waswasahs of the second stage by the nafs (carnal soul), as God says: "We verily created the man and We know what his nafs causes waswasah to him and We are nearer to him than his jugular vein" (L:16). The ta'wilic wisdom of this verse is that the God who created man physically is also going to create him spiritually. But God knows why the spiritual creation has been delayed. The cause of this delay is the waswasah of the nafs whose remedy is in benefitting from the Divine knowledge, i.e. reality. In the light of this knowledge it will be known how the nafs causes the waswasah, what is its remedy and what kind of help can be received from God as He is nearer than the jugular vein.

This explanation further shows that there is a salient difference between the waswasah of the Satan and that of the nafs, even though the latter is compared with the former in some cases. However, it is only a question of improvement and progress. Otherwise, in reality, the nafs cannot be the enemy of the Imam while the Satan is his enemy. According to the Divine Law, all the discourses of the devils, both of mankind and of jinn, although they are beautiful in appearance, and therefore, the Qur'an calls them "zukhruf (plausible discourse)" (VI:112) are waswasah. Thus the mu'min who abstains from the discourse of the enemies of the Imam is protected from the waswasahs of the Satan. Further, if he advances in bandagi in the light of true knowledge and adopts the way of remembering God abundantly, then he will also get rid of waswasah of the nafs.

THE REALITY OF BECOMING WASIL IN THE ASL AND FANA

(The Reality of merging with the Origin and Annihilation)

In this important subject asl means the origin or the fountainhead of the human soul, from where it has come to this world, like the reflection of the sun. Literally, asl, in Arabic, means root, the plural of which is usūl, roots. Usūl-i dīn is used in this sense, that is roots or the essentials of religion. It also means original and reality. The word 'waṣil' comes from 'waṣala' meaning to merge and hence 'waṣil' the one who merges. The real meanings of fanā are complete rectification, purification and dissolving of nafs (carnal soul).

The subject implies two things: asl and naql (original and copy). Before proceeding further it is worth mentioning that there is not much difference between the original and copy of certain things, while in the case of others there is a world of difference. For instance, between the original and copy of a book there is not much difference, but between a person and his picture, whether in a moving film or on paper, there is a lot of difference.

The example of each of us with respect to our asl or origin - the higher world - is like that of a man and his picture. That is to say man in the higher world is like a complete person and in this world, like a picture on paper or on the film screen. In this example it is obvious that the picture, once it has been taken, it is not possible to stick it back on the face of the person, nor is there any need to do so, as no decrease or void has occurred to the person by the taking of the picture. Similarly, the merging of a person or lower 'I' with his origin is not possible in the physical sense, nor is there such a need, for the higher 'I' is already merged with the origin and nothing has decreased from it by the coming of the lower  $^{\prime}I^{\prime}$  to this world.

Merging with the origin and annihilation with respect to physical existence mean spiritual elevation which in turn is Divine proximity and closeness. Such an annihilation is attainable not only after death but also in this life. Further, this status is attained not only by the prophets and <code>imāms</code> but also by the true <code>mu'mins</code> who follow them. In this sense it is said in the Qur'an: "Verily in the messenger of Allah you have a paragon example for him who looks unto Allah and the Last day, and remembers Allah abundantly "(XXXIII:21). The gist of the <code>ta'wil</code> of this verse is that he who looks unto God and to the <code>Imam</code> (for the Last Day stands for <code>Imām</code>), and remembers God abundantly, he will be able to follow the Prophet in spiritualism and be merged with the origin.

Manṣūr-i Ḥallāj is very famous in the world of Şufism. He had connections with the Ismā $^{C}$ ili da $^{C}$ is. He had attained the rank of fanā and was merged with the origin during his life-time. Like Manṣūr, there have passed many other fortunate souls who have experienced merging with the origin in their life-time, but it is not necessary that this experience should always be proclaimed. For it is a great secret which is known only to the selected ones (khawāş).

According to the Qur'anic story when Ḥazrat Mūsā saw the "Fire of Mount Sinai"(fire = theophany) the first time and heard the revelation, he came to know that inside and surrounding, i.e. special proximity, of that extremely holy fire, many fortunate souls had become  $\frac{fan\bar{a}}{and}$  and many others were becoming  $\frac{fan\bar{a}}{and}$  in it (XXVII: 8). If we accept that this fire was the rank of the light of guidance ( $\frac{n\bar{u}r-i}{n\bar{u}r-i}$  hidayat), namely, the light of the true guide ( $\frac{h\bar{a}d\bar{i}-i}{barhaqq}$ ) and not that of the Divine Essence ( $\frac{dh\bar{a}t-i}{dh\bar{a}t-i}$ ), as the verse indicates, then the path to the realities and gnoses ( $\frac{haq\bar{a}'iq-\bar{u}ma^c\bar{a}rif}$ ) will be clear and it will be easy for us to say and to understand that the souls of the mu'mins are attached to the holy light, which is in this world as God's vicegerent, in varying degrees. An understandable and salient example of the light is fire. The lovers of the light ( $\frac{n\bar{u}r}{u}$ ) in their soul are like iron pieces, some of them, it is said, were turned into red cinders in this luminous fire and some others were close to it in grades and as a result they had attained what they deserved to attain, namely, light and heat. Light and heat have thousands of meanings and innumerable qualities, as they are not limited like material things.

In this wisdom-filled story, the reason for calling that light: the fire, is that it is before us and we can see its function. That is to say we can see how the fire transforms the iron pieces into its colour and property. The function and efficacy of the fire first pass to the iron and then the iron performs the same function as the fire.

In short, the iron pieces which stand for the souls of the mu'mins, merging with the celestial fire are one and at the same time they retain their individuality. That is to say they are one in the sense that they are turned into the property of the fire and they retain their individuality in the sense that they are separate in the form of cinders.

And the greatest wisdom lies in having unity, duality and plurality at the same time, otherwise, the story of lover and beloved would cease and the same loneliness supposed by some will be felt. Further, if God had wished to efface individuality, he would have said that those who merged in this fire were merged in such a way that their individuality was lost. However, there is no such mention in the Qur'an.

The holy Qur'an says that He colours the mu'mins with His colour of luminous attributes (II:138). We can understand this reality also with the example of the fire and iron. And we can consider these two verses as explanation of each other: That is to say that those who are in the Fire of Mount Sinai are coloured with the colour of the Divine attributes, and those who are coloured with the colour of God are full of blessings as those in the blessed fire. For in one of the verses is mentioned the blessing (barkat) and in the other the colour.

I am sure that you will be able to understand these outlines of wisdom and fill it with colour, so that it will be a very beautiful map. I hope that you will be studying all my letters pertaining to religious knowledge.

MONOREALISM

Monorealism is a term pertaining to the  $\underline{ta'wilic}$  or esoteric concept of the divinity. It has caused the greatest revolution in knowledge and gnosis ( $\underline{^{\text{C}}_{\text{ilm}}}$  $\underline{^{\text{U}}}$  $\underline{^{\text{C}}}$  $\underline{^{\text{C}}$ on expedience and wisdom. They are not only in accordance with the requirements of time and place but also the different grades of human mind and awareness and the varying levels of the intellectual access of the people. Thus some of the farmans are specifically related to the jamat and some others are openly directed to the people of the entire world. But it is a different matter how much someone hears and what he does. However, regarding monorealism, whatever the true Imam has said is among the farmans which are related to the international level and hence it is open to the people and clearer than the sun.

Ideologically and conceptually,idolatory is better than atheism, for in idolatory, by necessity, there is the concept of a higher being.

Further, abandoning idolatory to follow a prophet is a matter of bliss and prudence. When the time of the holy and pure prophethood and apostleship of the Holy Prophet came it was incumbent upon the people of the religions to accept the manifest religion of Islam at his blessed hand. For Islam as the final religion of God modified and reformed the previous religions on a large scale and continued to evolve its teachings. Furthermore, it is a clear fact that the concept of religion started to evolve by separating itself from atheism and materialism and then it was fully strengthened by the debate between idolatory and Divine-worship (haqq-parasti) which took place in the light of the heavenly revelation and then it was perfected in Islam. Still further, in Islam during the rise of Sufism under the influence of the exoteric and esoteric teaching of the Imams of ahl-i bayt, special terms were coined for the concept of Divinity, such as haqiqat-i haqa'iq (Reality of realities), hamah ust (He is everything) etc. Today the concept of monorealism is the culmination of this evolution.

It is also a fact that Islam is a natural religion. An excellent and understandable example of nature is that on a fructiferous tree the first thing which comes into existence is the bud, then fresh flower, then unripe fruit, then ripe fruit and finally kernel. The kernel stands for the  $\underline{b\bar{a}tin}$  (esoteric) which is unique in taste and energy. Further, it has also the capacity of producing a tree of its own species.

This explanation shows that there is a very extensive history of the religious concepts of the inhabitants of the planet earth. These concepts continued to evolve gradually and today they have culminated in the concept of monorealism.

For the wise people, in the wisdom-filled concept of monorealism, the realities and gnoses are unveiled, the keys of the Divine secrets from the invisible veil are brought forth and whatever it was possible to grant potentially from the treasures of tawhid (unity) has been granted. Now it is upto them with what hope and certainty they further this concept and from which level of the light of knowledge they look at it.

Apparently, it seems that every believing group, from the pure fountain of the Qur'an, can construct a canal of teachings and exegeses to its ideological soil, but in reality only a real engineer can tell which is the most firm and durable canal.

Here we need an example of monorealism which would facilitate the understanding of its real purport and meaning. In this connection it should be known that man himself is a unique example of monorealism. His 'self' (khudi) or 'I' (anā), is in the form of a unity which has united body, soul and intellect. That is to say it is both the 'higher I' and the 'lower I'; it is the singularity of the particles of the body, the unity of the particles of the soul and integrity of the scattered pearls of intellect. Uniting things is its characteristic and nature.

In this connection another example which can help to understand this concept is found in the wisdom-filled Qur'anic concept of creation that God created all human beings with the creation of the primordial man.

That is to say that at that time all of them were with the Single Soul (nafs-i wāḥidah, i.e. Perfect Man in the form of particles of his spiritual existence, (XXXI:28). All of them were attached to the unity of the single 'I'. There was no trace and no name of plurality; it was only unity and unity. But later on, all of them appeared from it in the form of plurality. However, God is going to resurrect them again under the 'I' of the Single Soul as He had done the first time. It is an excellent Qur'anic example of monorealism.

Here we would like to give an example of the numerical logic too. That in the number thousand there are three cyphers and one number 'one'. The wisdom underlying this is that the numbers upto the thousand having been annihilated from their own form have become one with the number 'thousand', for the cypher symbolizes annihilation. That is to say that the world of numbers first annihilates in ten, then in hundred, then in thousand, and so on. Each time only the essence of 'one' is left. This is the ta'wil of "Everything is perishable except His Face" (XXVIII:88), and it is monorealism that the unity of all is the unity of one and the unity of one is the unity of all. The cypher depends on one and without which it alone is nothing. That is to say if it is separated from one, then it has no value at all. As Bābā Sayyidnā says:

"Za har kam kamtaram gar bī tū bāsham Za gardūn bartaram gar ba tu bāsham" i.e."I am less than nothing if I am without you; I am higher than heaven if I am with you." That is to say that the example of monorealism is also evident from the laws of numbers, as in decimal numbers such as ten, hundred and thousand— all other numbers become annihilated and disappear and thus their unity becomes the unity of one and the unity of one becomes the unity of all.

Our physical existence is at the level of any of the numbers:2,3,4,5,6, 7,8 and 9, and our soul is at the level of the cypher. But it is not known where this cypher of the soul is. If it is in the proximity and presence of one, then what more does it need? But if it is separated from it, then it is next to nothing. Therefore, we should progress from two to 9 and then annihilate ourselves in the one so that we will be resurrected in the Single Soul (XXXI:28) as all have to be resurrected in it.

Whatever can be deduced from this discussion seems to have two possible forms to reflect upon: either there originated a permanent plurality from the unity, or, no such plurality originated from it (unity), but there is only a plurality-like-unity (wahdat-i kathrat-numā). The characteristic and nature of numbers in the above example shows that the second form is possible. As in the order of numbers 'two' without one has no permanent existence, nor does its duality. For when one is subtracted twice from two, neither it nor its duality exists. The reason for that is that one is hidden in two. This is an example of the plurality-like-unity.

This is an explanation and example of the unity of the human 'I' which despite the innumerable particles of its soul is one. This, in turn, is the explanation and example of 'Monorealism'. Thus it should be known that the best example of 'Monorealism' is in man himself.

DIVINE PARTICLE - OUR UNIVERSE

God knows! Sometimes this heart withers like a waterless flower and sometimes becomes cheerful and delighted like a well-watered bud. May Mawlā, from His treasures of favours, always shower His favours upon my dear ones, who today encouraged me through a letter to write something on religious knowledge.

"The Divine Particle - Our Universe" means that even a smallest Divine mercy for us is equal to a universe. This same is the meaning of "Allāhu Akbar", that His every attribute is infinitely great and so too are His mercy and kindness. Thus the wise mu'mins should attain every moment a Divine mercy. This mercy, however small it may be externally, is infinitely great internally. For the Divine mercy is like a celestial ladder, which step by step goes upto the heaven of macrifat (gnosis).

"The Divine Particle" is a small word of the real and spiritual knowledge. It is small in the sense that it is concise, expressed in ordinary words and uttered out of the mouth of a mortal, but it is great in its comprehensiveness and value. Strange enough, this very one phrase sometimes provides answers to all questions; as if it is the single remedy for a hundred diseases and the single key to a hundred treasures. I wish I could have duly praised the "Divine Particle", but in my valueless words I have not done justice to its status.

"The Divine Particle" also means success granted by God; it should be sought always. If God grants success equal to even a particle, it should never be neglected, for it leads the mu'min servant to another success. It is like a luminous chain which has innumerable links, and link after link, leads to God.

"The Divine Particle", according to the irshād (guidance) of the pure and holy Imam, is a spark of the Divine light which every mu'min carries in his heart. The nature of this "particle" is such that even though it is a spark initially, it transforms into a complete light gradually. It is among the allusions of the holy Qur'an that the light initially seems very dim and small but gradually it comes forward in the form of the perfect Divine light. In this connection should be studied the Qur'anic story of the "Light of Mount Sinai (nūr-i Tūr)".

"The Divine Particle" is a drop of the luminous clouds of the heaven of Divine knowledge. It trickles in the form of a drop, no doubt, but it becomes a billowy ocean in the heart. It is an utterance (lafz) which surpassing all utterances becomes the centre of all meanings, an example which subordinates all other examples, a word which can touch the height of the world of command (lalpha lalpha lalpha

It should be known that when knowledge comes down it comes expansively and when it ascends, it contracts until it concentrates into a pearl and a word. By pearl is meant the Pearl of Intellect (gawhar-i caql) and by the word the Divine Word (kalimah-i bari).

As there is benefit in ascending towards the height of knowledge, similarly, there is loss, rather, a great loss and deviation in going down towards its lower level. The lowest stage of knowledge is the place of controversies from where people cannot escape. One of the Qur'anic verses implies that whom God wills to go astray, He causes him to be astray in knowledge (XLV:23). By this knowledge is meant the lowest level of knowledge where there is a deluge of controversies in the traditions.

Pā'ināb, in Turkish, is the name of the water which comes out from a garden or a farm after saturating it. Originally, it is 'pā'ināb' of Persian, which in Brushaski is called 'hurchil' in contrast to 'yanchil' which means the flowing water of a canal. Everywhere people do not give that importance to 'hurchil' which they give to 'yanchil.

In this world there is a pleasant and beautiful garden of Mawlana Murtazā <sup>C</sup>Alī, namely, the true religion (madhhab-i haqq) which is irrigated by the Prophet and Imam according to the command of God. From the irrigation of this soil of the true religion the 'pā'ināb' or 'hurchil' goes to the people of the world, which we do not need.

O my dears! May my soul be sacrificed for you! This humble darwish likes the word 'particle' very much. The obvious reason for this is that he has seen a lot in 'particle and particles' and he wishes that his dears should also know the wisdom of 'particle'. That is to say that they should progress in Cibadat particle by particle; they should advance in knowledge particle by particle and should consider even a particle of neglect a sin so that they may achieve success.

It should be remembered that the important points in the higher literature of religion are the elaborations of the guidance of the holy Imam. I, therefore, say that these points are like the scattered light. Thus the mu'min who absorbs the light of religious knowledge profoundly, God willing, will see one day the actual light in himself and become extremely happy and delighted.

My dears! If there is any worldly difficulty, you should not be worried by it. For today those who are well-to-do materially and physically but do not have the well being and happiness of faith, then, in reality, they are the most afflicted and unfortunate ones. Your wealth of faith and reality is so invaluable and ever-lasting that in comparison to it the kingdom of the entire universe is not equal even to a particle of it. Thus when we cry and bewail any worldly difficulty it is because of our ignorance.

My most dear children! Study each and every farman of the exalted Imam, particularly, those pertaining to the spiritual elevation which give encouragement. Remember that mu'min always has high ambition. He awakes every day in the morning during the luminous time. The one who is lazy and negligent and is not aware of his own status falls into the abasement of animality and becomes ruined. May the Lord of the world protect all mu'mins from this state and make them advance in the light of guidance (nūr-i hidāyat).

My Lord! My Lord! My dear ones always help this darwish; they are carrying further this humble service for knowledge; they always seek Thy pleasure. So shower Thy favours upon them!

Ameen. 0 the Lord of the worlds!

THE MOST COMPREHENSIVE AND WISE WORDS IN HAZRAT ADAM'S STORY

The story of Ḥazrat Adam in the holy Qur'an is filled with great Divine secrets and in many aspects it has the key importance in knowing them. It represents not only the beginning of religion, but also its end. Thus it is necessary for every wise mu'min to reflect more and more upon it in order to be able to know the Divine secrets of fundamental and essential nature.

In this connection, by the grace of the True Lord and through the charity of the Holy Panj-tan (Five Persons) we are making a humble attempt and hope that the comely and lovely souls of Monorealism will work for us as the angels of ta'id (Divine help) and enable us to obtain some precious pearls from the unfathomable ocean of these most wise and comprehensive words contained in this story.

Rabb: 'Rabb' is the most illuminating and ascertaining (nur-i mubin awr aftab-i yaqin) word among the words in the story of Adam and Adamhood. It is the blessed name of God, the One, the Unique, which means the Nourisher of the worlds (parwardigar-i Calamin). It gives the guarantee of every kind of physical and spiritual nourishment and embraces the concept of heavenly mercy and love, as the upbringing of the physical parents entails the paternal and maternal love and affection. The Lord of the World is extremely kind and is the fountainhead of the purest and supreme love for His creatures. Thus under the varying meaning of 'rabb' the universe and existents receive their respective nourishment. That is to say that He is nourishing them on different levels. This also means that the Lord, the Benevolent, can, in the long chain of material, spiritual and intellectual nourishment, make the creatures reach the ultimate level. In the wise Qur'an where the verses which are revealed in the optative form, most of them begin with the blessed name of 'rabb'. Khudā-Shināsī or ma<sup>C</sup>rifat (the recognition of God), which is the supreme purpose in religion also comes under the name 'rabb' among all the names of Allah, as is said: "man carafa nafsahu faqad carafa rabbahu (He who recognizes his soul recognizes his rabb)".

In this connection before going into the details of the Qur'an let us look into the 'sūrah-i Fatihah'. For it is the mother or essence of the book and therefore, whatever it contains will be the most comprehensive and easy to understand. In this surah there are only a few names of God which are apparent and the rest are hidden. Among those which are apparent first comes Allah and then follows 'rabb'. But Allah is such a name which despite being an adjectival name is used as a substantive name, therefore, its secrets cannot be open except to selected ones. As for the 'rabb' its being used in both the most common and the most special sense, can reveal its extensive meanings. Further, it should also be seen that in the 'Fatihah' the entire praise of Allah manifest in the name 'rabb' and all other names is its explanation. For instance, 'rahman' and 'rahim' which follow 'rabb' mean that Allah Who is the Nourisher (rabb) of all the worlds, is the most Beneficent and most Merciful, therefore, He always wants to provide the means of spiritual and intellectual nourishment for mankind, otherwise, it would be contrary to His law of mercy.

Further, 'rahman' and 'rahim' also allude that the spiritual and intellectual nourishment is possible to receive only if there is love for the 'mazhar' of the name 'rabb'. For both the names stem from the root 'rahm' (in Persian, mihr), i.e. love. This can also be seen in the verse (XXX:21) in which 'rahmah' is used in the sense of 'mahabbah (love)'.

Furthermore, the way 'rahman' and 'rahīm' are used in the Qur'an, they, through their meanings, obliterate any despondency and despair regarding the lack of spiritual and intellectual nourishment. They say to mankind in the language of wisdom that since Allah as 'rahman' and 'rahīm' has appointed His vicegerent (who is the mazhar of the attribute of 'rabb') on the earth, mankind should also, according to its capacity, establish the link of love (which is linked with 'rahman' and 'rahīm' in a way) with Him so that it may continuously receive the Divine guidance for its worldly and spiritual affairs from Him.

My dears! Check the index of the Qur'an yourselves, and see how many times the blessed name 'rabb' has occured, so that you will be able to assess what a great treasure of the Divine secrets is hidden in it. In addition, see the explanation of 'rabb' and 'rububiyyat', i.e. the attribute of 'rabb' in religious literature so that the light of religious knowledge may increase.

Now, in order to understand the subject from its very foundation, you should study the verse (II:30) in the Qur'an, as the story of Adam begins from here. It is said "Wa idh-qala rabbuka li'l-mala'ikati inni jac'ilun fi'l-ardi khalifah (when your rabb said to angels I am going to appoint a vicegerent (of Mine) on the earth)". The key to the lofty and sublime wisdoms of this verse lies in the holy word 'rabbuka' (thy rabb) in the sense that the perfect man whom God wills to appoint as His vicegerent (khalifah) on the earth wants to give mostly the representation of the name 'rabb' so that there will be no lack of religious and spiritual nourishment as there is no lack of physical nourishment. Further, on the day of Resurrection in the Supreme Court of the Divine Law no one will be able to say that there was no means of spiritual upbringing in the world while that of the physical, God had provided every means.

In 'rabbuka' the pronoun 'ka (thy)' goes to the holy Prophet. Its tā'wil is that the vicegerency which God has granted to him and whose supreme purpose is spiritual and intellectual nourishment continues from the time of Adam and has to continue till the "Resurrection of Resurrections (qiyamat al-qiyamat)" through him and the holy chain of his successors.

Further, it is implied here that the Divine vicegerency which was given to Adam and which first and foremost was the vicegerency of the name 'rabb' means that Hazrat Adam was doing the spiritual and intellectual upbringing of the people of faith (= angels) in the form of teaching them the Divine names (Cilm al-asma') and this nobody can do except the Vicegerent of God.

Mala'ikah: The next word in this verse is 'mala'ikah' (pl. of malak) meaning angels which also included 'Azazīl. God proclaimed to them that He was going to appoint His vicegerent on the earth. Regarding angels, here arise some very deep questions, whether they were jalalī or jamalī. Did they include the jalalī angels like Universal Intellect, Universal Soul, The Bearers of the Throne, or by them are meant only the jamalī ones, i.e. the souls of the people related to the time of Adam. The context of the verse shows that they cannot be jalālī angels, for such an ignorance cannot be attributed to them because of their lofty position. Thus they were the jamali angels, i.e. the soul of the people related to the period of Adam. Once it is established that they were the souls of the people related to the time of Adam, let us explain it further. God says: "Thus We have appointed unto every prophet an adversary — devils of mankind and jinn who whisper in one another plausible discourse through guile" (VI:112).

This wisdom-filled verse shows that the devils of every period and every time are different, and they are the enemies of every prophet and imam in their respective time. They are the devils of mankind with respect to their body and those of jinn with respect to their unfortunate soul. Secondly, according to this unchangeable Divine Law there were some disobedient and wicked people during the time of Adam who were to him the devils of mankind in physical sense and those of jinn spiritually. As for their whispering, the whispering of one physical devil into another is apparent, but the subtle point lies in knowing how the spiritual devils whisper in the physical devils. The fact is that as devils' personality is under the influence of his unfortunate sould (= nafs) similarly, his nafs receives insinuation (yuha, VI:112) from the word and act of his personality.

When it is revealed clearly that the wicked people during the time of Adam who had enmity with him, were the devils of mankind in physical sense and those of jinn in the spiritual sense, then it is also revealed that the mu'mins of that time were physical angels in their body and spiritual angels in their soul. The realities of Ḥazrat Adam's story are in accordance with this concept and hence all related questions have to be solved in the light of it.

Since every great prophet and Imam has two great positions, the external and the internal, Adam's story also has the same two positions. In fact, the internal and spiritual is more important and great. That is to say the events which occured to Hazrat Adam in spiritualism were far greater, more wondrous and more filled with wisdom and secrets of macrifat than those which occured to him physically. Thus it should be believed that Adam's story is mostly related to ta'wil.

Here we will cite an example which will enable the wise to assess how the story of Adam is mostly inclined towards ta'wil. In the Qur'an the word 'sajdah', which literally means to bow down and technically to prostrate, is perfect and complete in its meaning. Wherever it has been used for any kind of physical sajdah it is used alone in any of its form. But wherever it is used for the spiritual prostration of angels to Adam it is commanded by God, in a special way, in two words : "fa-qa<sup>C</sup>u lahu sajidin (then fall down prostrating unto him (unto Adam)" (XV:29; XXXVIII:72). Here the worth consideration and ta'wilic word is 'qa'u' (from the root waga<sup>c</sup>a: to fall down) in which is the command to fall down. It signifies the state of the spiritual prostration of the souls of mu'mins (= spiritual angels) to Adam, the Vicegerent of God. That is to say when the souls of mu'mins in the world of particles ( $\frac{c_{alam-i}}{alam-i}$  dharr = spiritual world) performed the prostration of reverence and obedience (sajdah-i ta<sup>C</sup>zim-u ita<sup>C</sup>at) to Adam, they fell down in his pure body as particular (dharri) angels who were compounds of astral body and soul.

In this connection the principle point is that we should always have before us the "Mirror of the example of the Prophet". He was undoubtedly the epitome of the spiritual virtues of all prophets. For according to the Prophetic tradition they are like a "Single Soul" (nafs-i wāhidah).

The perfect and complete manifestation of prophethood took place in his pure personality. In this sense the Qur'an says: "They say: We make no distinction between any of His messengers" (II: 275). This means that had the spiritual observations and spiritualism of the great prophets been apportioned and no-one would have had them completely. But this is not true. The fact is the holy Prophet, in any case, had the spiritual virtues of Adam. That is to say that angels had also prostrated to him as they had done to Adam for God had also breathed His spirit in him.

Now by this concept ample light is shed on the reality and nature of the Satan, angels, etc. in the story of Adam where the devils and angels were related to the people living in his time. However, neither did the wicked know that in accordance with the Qur'anic verse (VI: 112), because of their enmity to Adam, they had turned into the devils of mankind with respect to their body and with respect to their unfortunate soul into the devils of jinn, nor did the ordinary mu'mins know that with respect to their person they had become physical angels and with respect to their soul spiritual angels. The same was the case during the time of the Holy Prophet. The disobedient did not know that they had become devils, nor was this secret disclosed to the ordinary mu'mins that they had become angels with respect to their souls and their souls were passing through the events which occured to the angels during the time of Adam.

In short, most of the story of Adam is hidden behind the veil of ta'wil. It is said, therefore, although apparently it is related to one Adam, but in reality it is the story of an endless chain of many Adams. As in the Qur'an, although the word 'insan' is used in the singular, but it implies the plural. Similarly, Adam is used in the singular form, but it implies the plural.

MU'MIN AND HIS FAMILY

In the chapter "Tahrim" (Banning) regarding mu'mins and their families the Holy Lord says: "O ye who believe! Ward off from yourselves and your families a fire (of hell) whereof the fuel is men and stones"(LXV:6).

Various fundamental realities come to light by reflecting on this blessed verse. The first and foremost is that God has provided every possible means for the salvation of the mu'mins. Otherwise had there been any lack of the means of salvation He would not have said so. That is to say, that a mu'min is responsible for not only the welfare and salvation of his own soul, but in a way also for the souls of his family and children. For the children of a mu'min are a part of his life, both in this world and the next. They are not separated from him, they stand for his newer and fresher humanity and corporeality. This applies to all kinds of children. That is to say, that, it is enough indication to all those who can be parents and children in the true sense that the children are a new life and a new beautiful attire of the parents.

Thus the mu'mins should bring up their children religiously and spiritually in the best possible way and in no way should they fail to fulfil this sacred duty. It is known that there are numerous such clear farmans from the holy presence of the light of imamat in which emphasis is laid on the religious and worldly education and upbringing of the children.

This bandah-i darwish has seen some such mu'mins who according to the holy farman of the Imam give religious education to their children. Here, I am presenting an example of such a mu'min, namely, my most dear Muhammad <sup>C</sup>Alī Nūr Muhammad Jināh, who stands in the front line of the devoted Isma<sup>C</sup>ilis. The history of his service for the jama<sup>C</sup>at is quite extensive. He is the soul of <sup>C</sup>ĀRIF. According to the holy farman of the Exalted Imam he has breathed the soul of faith in his affectionate son Liyaqat <sup>C</sup>Alī, who is a handsome and healthy boy of 9 years, in such a way that he, in addition to being regular in his daily <sup>C</sup>ibadat, knows many things about religion. He is a student of class four, Group A, and receives education in both English and French. He can converse well in both these widely spoken languages of the world.

My little friend Liyaqat <sup>C</sup>Alī is endowed with innumerable abilities. But the most prominent and conspicuous one which makes me extremely happy, when I see it, is that every morning regularly he recites one short holy farman before taking ab-i shifa'. He has made this, a part and parcel of his lovely habit due to the instruction and guidance of his far-sighted father. And now this blessed practice pleases both himself and those who observe it.

In this lovely home there are abundant means of religious and spiritual satisfaction. First of all there is a great treasure of the blessed farmans of the Imam of the time, then a huge collection of Ginans, and an ever-lasting wealth of religious books and a world of religion cassettes. Thus for my dear Liyaqat CAli special cassettes are made. For the correct pronunciation of the holy DuCa', the soul-nourishing recitation of Mr. Faquir Muhammad Hunzai is recorded and he listens to this recording time and again so that he may correct his pronunciation.

This fortunate boy has even from this age started to take notes of the religious matters. For this purpose he has a separate note-book in which he has taken many notes. In this note-book he has also drawn the sketches and diagrams here and there. Sometimes he also asks questions which are very deep.

Liyaqat <sup>C</sup>Alī has been going to the night school for two years, despite its being very far from his home. He goes to jama<sup>C</sup>at khanah with his father. May the Lord, the Beneficent, the Merciful, grant still more high ambition and every kind of success to Liyaqat <sup>C</sup>Alī and all our near and dear. Similarly, may all the Isma<sup>C</sup>īlīs and their children attain the eudamonia and happiness of this world and the next. Ameen, O the Lord of the worlds!

Ever-praying Khadim,

Nasīr Hunzāī.

A Token of Gratitude and Appreciation

to

Allamah Naşîr al-Din Naşîr Hunzaî

Respected 'Allamah Sahib,

Although we are fully aware that mere words are not going to be able to express what we feel, nevertheless, we wish to write them down as a small token of the deep appreciation and gratitude we feel for the nurturing we have received from you, in the sphere of Ilm, in the last few months here in Montreal.

When we look back to the time when we first met you, we are unshakeably convinced that Mawlana Hazir Imam sent you under the guise of the Research Associateship at the University of Montreal, in order to give us an insight into the very profound 'Khazanah' of the Isma illi faith. We will never stop offering our 'shukr' to Mawlana Hazir Imam for His grace in bringing you to us.

Since your arrival in Montreal in February, the days and weeks have passed all too quickly, filled with the wonderful memories of majālis with you. 'Allāmah Ṣāḥib, you have taught us the true beauty of doing giryā-u zārī, you have introduced us to the unending miracles of our Ismā<sup>c</sup>īlī faith and you have awakened in us a deep yearning for Mawlāna Ḥāzir Imām and a sincere ambition to acquire'Ilm from Him.

We have been truly moved by your humility and patience in answering our questions. Your inexhaustible knowledge, your ability to explain points of religion in the light of logic, your scientific approach and your constant humility will be a source of inspiration for us and inshallah, a model for us to emulate.

We have read in the past history of Ismā<sup>c</sup>īlism that many duāt went from Arabia and Persia further east to spread the light of Ismā<sup>c</sup>īlism. For our special benefit, Mawlāna Ḥāzir Imām has sent a dā<sup>c</sup>ī like yourself from the East to the West, to kindle the spark which exists in all of us.

Your lectures on Monorealism, Wasil in Asl and the Divine Particle, to mention only a few, will remain with us forever and inshāllah we will build on this secure foundation of 'Ilm.

Sāhib, our knowledge of the Qur'ān has regrettably been most inadequate. Your lectures on tā'wīl have opened up for us completely new avenues of 'Ilm.

For all this and much more we cannot express on paper, we remain eternally grateful to you. We pray to Mawlana Hazir Imam to reward you in both the worlds, ameen. We also pray that Mawlana Hazir Imam will enable us to meet again in this life and with His blessing we will make good use of all the knowledge we have acquired from you, not only for ourselves but for the benefit of our Jamacat, in the true spirit of Monorealism.

Your grateful students,

Montreal,

6th June, 1982.
